

Centerline Rapid Transit Stations

Community Celebrates Region's First Freeway-Level Transit Stations

The grand opening celebration and community block party were held in City Heights on Saturday for completion of the region's first freeway-level transit stations. Officials and community members kicked off the festivities by unveiling a bronze plaque that will be installed at the El Cajon Boulevard and University Avenue Centerline Rapid Transit Stations.

County Supervisor Ron Roberts addresses the grand opening crowd. (Courtesy of Ron Robert's Office)

The $65 million project led by the San Diego Association of Governments, was a collaborative effort between Caltrans District 11, which provided the construction management services for the project, and the San Diego Metropolitan Transit System, which will maintain the transit stations and operate the Rapid transit service. Construction began on the SR 15 Mid-City Centerline Transit Stations project in 2015.

“The Centerline Rapid stations will provide MTS passengers with even more convenience and reliability through the heart of the Mid-City corridor,” said MTS Board Chair Georgette Gómez, who is also a SANDAG Board of Directors representative, and councilmember for District 9. “Residents of City Heights worked hard to achieve this project, which will add a new level of transit service for the Mid-City community.”